Chef Jean-Baptiste Bady wins Chef of the Year 2009

On 1 March 2009 Chef Jean-Baptiste Bady received the award for Chef of the Year 2009 from the Presiding Officer of the Scottish Parliament, Alex Ferguson MSP, at The Scottish Hotel Awards ceremony held in Glasgow. This award recognises Jean-Baptiste's achievement in creating exquisite gourmet culinary experiences. Promoted to Head Chef at Kinnaird Hotel, Restaurant and Sporting Estate in 2007, his innovative menus and reinstatement of the Kinnaird Smoking House have received much critical acclaim continuing Kinnaird's reputation as one of best culinary destinations in Scotland.

The judging panel stay at all the nominated hotels. The nominees are well known to the panel members and interviewed before being shortlisted. Jean-Baptiste's consistent standards over the past two years were a significant factor in his success.

Quote from Jean-Baptiste

.... I was really pleased to receive this award for what is simply my passion. It means a lot to receive a national award and the recognition from my peers in the Scottish industry, especially when I strive to make the most of ingredients from local Scottish companies, and indeed grown in the gardens on the Estate...
